

Thomson Ferrie LLP Cookie Policy

What are 'cookies'?

A cookie is a small file of letters and numbers that is downloaded onto your computer when you visit a website. Cookies are used by many websites and can do many things such as: remembering your preferences, recording what you have put in your shopping basket, and counting the number of people looking at a website.

You can find more general information about cookies at: www.aboutcookies.org

The cookies on this website can be divided into four categories:

Essential

These cookies enable core functionality such as security, verification of identity and network management. These cookies can't be disabled. By using our website, you accept the use of 'Essential' cookies.

Functional

These cookies collect data to remember choices users make to improve and give a more personalised experience.

Marketing

These cookies are used to track advertising effectiveness to provide a more relevant service and deliver better ads to suit your interests.

Analytics

These cookies help us to understand how visitors interact with our website, discover errors, and provide better overall analytics which may help us improve the interactions visitors have with our website in the future.

It is possible to remove or block cookies. This is generally found within the settings of your browser.

To opt out of being tracked by Google Analytics across all websites, visit this link:
